The Mission Field:

The International Graduate School of Leadership (IGSL) is a graduate-level school in Manila, Philippines with a mission to develop servant-steward leaders for key sectors of society.

IGSL enables and equips people to grow in knowledge, character, and skills through its well-balanced curriculum and its faculty mentors. We are a colourful, multinational community that serves as a caring family to those who come from many parts of the world. Share our excitement as we purposefully reach out to bring Christ's message and model of transforming leadership to other sectors of society.

Our Mission Calling:

Our mission is to teach and train pastors and leaders for the Asian Church.

Our Role:

We teach, mentor and coach students at International Graduate School of Leadership.

Our Story:

We are professors at the International Graduate School of Leadership (IGSL) in Manila. The school has about 300 students studying on campus and more than one thousand alumni serving in 43 countries.

We first met at IGSL in 2009 and were married in 2014 in the Philippines. Our vision is to see local churches in Asia being led by spiritually transformed and biblically trained leaders. To realise that vision, we are committed to teaching, mentoring, and coaching students from more than 20 Asian countries at IGSL.

We do not only teach "head knowledge;" we also involve "the heart and hands" in our training environments at IGSL. The main reason for our placement here is to develop servant-steward leaders for the Asian church where the majority of the pastors and leaders are not biblically trained. Through this placement, we are committed to equip our co-labourers for the harvest field.
